Video Footage in UK Games

Video footage which is not an integral part of a video game but is however contained on the same disc (or other electronic device) as the game will be identified as such. Video footage will be treated as being an integral part of the game if it comprises an introduction or conclusion to the game, a linking scene between different levels of the game or otherwise drives the narrative of the game forward.

The VSC will enter into an arrangement with the BBFC to ensure that all video footage which is not an integral part of a game either has been or is referred to them for a determination. The VSC will have all due and proper regard to any such BBFC determination in reaching any decision as to the PEGI rating to be given to any such game (including the non-integral video footage).
